

Influential Women of Utah

Photography by Livi Roberts, employee

When it comes to finding the words to explain their raison d'être, Haus of Aesthetics doesn't skip a beat. "We opened our doors because we wanted to create a space where people feel happy, loved, and part of a family," says Amy Archuleta. "Haus of Aesthetics is a safe space for all gender identities to achieve body positivity, and it's a place where we can be a mentor and have a positive impact on our clients, employees, and community."

Offering high-end, premier medical spa services, Haus of Aesthetics is often at the forefront of new technology and treatments.

"We were one of the first to use the now popular Semaglutide, and it's been so rewarding to see our clients achieve their weight loss goals and cry happy tears," says Amy. "We're known as a community-centered place that is always serving others and giving back where we can. Haus of Aesthetics is truly a place that belongs to our clients, and everyone who walks through our doors knows that they can always come just as they are."

